

AGENDA ON SECURITY

East Yorkshire-based security specialists, Agenda Security Services, are to run a Business Security Seminar in partnership with AMJ Solicitors. The event, which is to be held at the KC Stadium on Wednesday, October 24th, is aimed at directors, managers and other members of staff who have responsibility for security, legal compliance and safety at work.

“Security breaches including fraud, theft, malicious damage, computer hacking and virus attacks, perpetrated either by employees or persons unknown operating from remote locations, are costing businesses and other organisations billions of pounds each and every year,” says Norman Mortell of Agenda Security Services.

“This seminar will address and offer expert advice on dealing with those security and safety issues that are of most concern to businesses including data protection, screening of new employees, site and staff security, business continuity, safety at work and compliance with employment legislation covering health and safety issues,” he added.

Speakers at the event will include a senior figure from Humberside Police Special Branch, senior solicitors from AMJ, and representing Agenda, a staff screening specialist and a former computer forensics and fraud squad police officer. The event will also be supported by Business Link Humber.
