

Security Awareness

“Really good course, excellent range of information, very informative.”

Creating a Security Aware Culture

Animal Rights extremism and globalisation of the opposition to the use of animals in medical research through such groups as PETA has made it more important than ever to be vigilant. Having a security aware culture and knowledge of animal rights extremist tactics can help to provide a safe working environment and reduce the impact of these threats.

Agenda's security courses have been delivered to over 4000 people worldwide with excellent feedback, continually updated and designed to meet your needs these courses will support all of your other security based activities. All courses are interactive with the emphasis on effective learning through interaction and fun learning activities.

Security Awareness Course

Specifically designed for research facilities this course reviews 5 key areas:

- The Animal Rights environment
- Understanding security systems/policy
- Threats to facilities/communications and IT
- People threats – infiltration behaviours
- Development of key actions

Who should attend?

The course is designed for anybody with an interest in research facility security, whether from a research, security or HR perspective. It is particularly useful to raise awareness amongst Managers and supervisors, front line staff, first points of contact, research/security personnel.

What will I learn?

This course raises awareness of the tactics used by Animal Rights groups in relation to the environment (why there is an issue), security systems (how systems can help respond to the environment), Issues relating to risks to facilities and communications (current and past AR tactics) and people issues (infiltrator tactics and the development of practical awareness measures that you can take).
