

The message is clear

Potentially, one of the greatest security risks for any organisation is the people it employs. The vast majority of staff will be loyal and dedicated. But it only takes one 'bad apple' to slip through the net to cause serious problems. The message is loud and clear. If you want to avoid the risk of unwittingly hiring a data thief, activist, fraudster, spy or illegal worker, it's vital that you have in place a thorough and effective pre-employment screening process.

Agenda Security Services can provide all the expertise and support you require. Our screening group is headed by ex-police and military officers with extensive investigative experience in the anti-terrorist squad, fraud squad, special branch and computer forensics.

Our screening procedures and Criminal Record Bureau (CRB) checks are amongst the most rigorous and comprehensive you will find, and include:

- Identity confirmation to verify that a person is who they say they are
- In-depth questioning of candidates by trained interviewers
- Thorough checks to confirm claimed qualifications
- Verification of references and interviews with referees to cross check information provided by the candidate
- Management of written reference process and questionnaire design
- Address confirmation including checks for co-habitants
- Investigation of full employment history to verify details provided on CV
- Detailed analysis of CVs to identify any information gaps or contradictions
- Investigation into the financial background of candidates whose role may include handling money
- Media search to ascertain if your candidate has any links with undesirable organisations or individuals

In short, if there's something not quite right about a candidate, we'll uncover it!
